Reducing the health care disparities of its patients is a quality and safety priority for the hospital.

Elements of Performance (EPs) for LD.04.03.08 responsibility or may be in addition to other duties.

- The hospital designates an individual(s) who leads the development, implementation, and monitoring of activities to reduce health care disparities within the hospital's patient population.
 Note: Addressing health care disparities may be an individual's primary job
- 2. The hospital assesses the social needs and social determinants of health of its patients and then provides information about community resources and support services when necessary.

Note 1: Examples of social needs and social determinants of health may include the following:

- Employment status
- Housing insecurity
- Food insecurity
- Access to transportation
- Education and literacy
- Difficulty paying for prescriptions or medical bills

Note 2: Social needs and social determinants of health may be identified for a representative sample of patients or for the hospital's entire patient population.

- The hospital evaluates whether health care disparities exist by stratifying key quality and safety data using the sociodemographic characteristics, social needs, or social determinants of health of its patients.
 Note: The quality and safety data used for stratification analyses will vary
 - Note: The quality and safety data used for stratification analyses will vary depending on the health care setting. Hospitals may focus on areas with known disparities identified in the scientific literature (for example, organ transplantation, maternal care, diabetes management) or select measures that affect all patients (for example, experience of care and communication).
- 4. The hospital develops a written action plan that describes how it will address at least one of the health care disparities identified in its patient population.
- 5. The hospital monitors the effectiveness of its activities to reduce health care disparities in its patient population.
- 6. At least annually, the hospital informs key stakeholders, including leaders, licensed practitioners, and staff, about its progress to reduce identified health care disparities.
